BOMBARDMENT OF CHAPEI

JAPANESE HEAVY GUNS IN ACTION

WHOLE SETTLEMENT SHOOK WOOSUNG FORT GUNS OUT OF ACTION.

Shanghai, To-day.

Most of the sleepers in the International Settlement were startled from their sleep when, at one o'clock this morning, the Japanese suddenly opened fire on the Chinese positions in Chapei with heavy calibre guns, probably six-inch, which shook the whole Settlement.

The bombardment was terrific for half an hour, shells pouring in at the rate of nearly one a minute.

This was followed by persistent shelling by smaller ordnance, and machine-guns were very busy, but at 4 a.m. the offensive died down to desultory firing.

The Chinese side was silent during the heaviest bombardment, having nothing with which to reply to the Japanese heavies, but they resisted by shelling smaller pieces.

The Woosung Fort's guns are out of action, but machine-guns are busy. It is expected that the bombardment will be resumed to-morrow.

RESIST TO UTMOST.

Mayor Wu Tieh-chen, interviewed by Reuter, asserted that the morale of the Chinese defending Chapei against the Japanese onslaughts was now very high. They no longer feared the formerly dreaded Marine bluejackets.

He emphasised that the Chinese troops were determined not to attack the Japanese positions "owing to respect for the Settlement," but would resist to the uttermost all Japanese attacks.—Reuter.

GREATEST OFFENSIVE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Shanghai, To-day.

The outbreak of a chain of fires in a score of places created a lurid scene, to which the passage of dense clouds of smoke over the International Settlement itself greatly contributed.

The Woosung forts have been completely destroyed by naval gunfire.

The greatest offensive yet undertaken by the Japanese was met by a determined Chinese line of bayonet fighters on the north side of the Shanghai-Woosung Railway. There were hand-to-hand conflicts between the Cantonese and Japanese Marines, with heavy losses on both sides.

Tons of explosives were dropped on Chapei, the aeroplanes adding confusion to the terror of destruction.

Comic relief was furnished by a little incident involving the Shanghai Scottish outpost, which jumped to sandbag embrasures with rifles ready when somebody shouted "heh."

They had been told to anticipate an attack on the gate they guarded but the yelling fellow was only a grinning Chinese soldier, who stood a little time waving and making strange signals which the Scottish could not comprehend, but they found the man friendly and the episode relieved the tension.

More "Protests."

Washington, Yesterday.

A further protest has been sent from Great Britain and the United States to Japan against the use of the International Settlement in Shanghai as a base. The State Department does not feel that Japan's rejection of the British-American peace proposals has closed the door for a further suggestion by the interested Powers. The Japanese Foreign Minister told the Ambassador in Tokyo that further suggestions from the Powers would be welcome. The State Department has not yet formulated any new proposal, but may do so after consultation with the British Government.

"WHISKY."

A Purely British Product.

CASE IN BERLIN.

Berlin, Yesterday. On the ground that "Whisky" is a purely British product which cannot be made elsewhere, six well-known British distillery firms are suing a German firm in the Berlin Court to restrain the firm from calling its products "Whisky". The British firms claim that whisky, because of its special character dependent on the British climate, cannot be made in Germany. Furthermore the name "Whisky" is closely bound with Britain and known internationally for ages past as a British beverage.—Reuter's Special Service.

R. E. SERGEANTS.

Carnival Dance a Great Success.

COLOURFUL SCENE.

After a long delay, owing to the outbreak of diphtheria the R. E. Sergeants' Dance Carnival, which was postponed from New Year's Eve, was held in the Garrison Lecture Hall last night. In spite of the elements there was a surprisingly large crowd present, and the revelry which commenced at 8.30 p.m. was carried on until 2 a.m.

The fancy-dresses, although few in number, made up in quality, and the judges must have had a difficult task in selecting the two winners. Pierrot and page, Spanish senorita and the gay caballero, sailor girl and Pearly King, Chinaman and Query, all added a picturesque touch to the gay throng, as they danced away the happy hours amid a profusion of streamers. Reminding one of "Miss Hook of Holland" there were two of the Orphan Girls in their delightful Dutch dresses, while the unique dress of the Cumberland "Revellers" who supplied the music, blended the whole party into one colourful pageant.

Novelties were profuse, and prizes were offered for the couple who won the Spot Waltz.

Among those present were Col. R. B. Skinner O.B.E., and Mrs. Skinner, who will shortly be leaving the Colony for Home, Col. S. Boyd, D.S.O., who is taking over from Col. Skinner, the Misses Boyd, Lt. Col. Marsden, Major Mousley and Mrs. Mousley, Major Tosh, Capt. and Mrs. de Linde, Capt. and Mrs.

and other interested Powers.—Reuter's American Service.

JAPAN'S CASE.

Facts Distorted by Propagandists.

(To the Editor of "China Mail".)

Sir,—It is to be regretted that there seem to exist, at the present moment, many misinformed news and rumours with regard to the recent outbreak of Shanghai affairs. I am, hereby, going to bring the following facts to your knowledge.

1. On January 21, the Japanese Consul-General at Shanghai lodged a protest with the Mayor of Greater Shanghai, demanding their strict restriction over unlawful actions against Japan and Japanese subjects. To this demand, the Chinese authorities did not only show any sincere attitude and would put off their reply without any valid reason, but in the meantime, they concentrated their troops to the vicinity of Shanghai to be a great menace to the Japanese population there.

THEFT OF CASHIER'S ORDERS.

Young Bank Clerk Bound Over.

$40,000 INVOLVED.

Li King-hay, aged 22 years, employed as a clerk in the Bank of East Asia, Ltd., appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court on charges of the theft of three cashier orders, totalling over $40,000, and uttering a forgery by signing a fictitious name to one of them. Defendant was arrested on a warrant, on the eve of his wedding, which was to have been celebrated at Canton.

This morning, his Worship, addressing the accused, said that he had given the case very serious consideration. He did not want to send him to jail, and he appeared to him to be contrite for what he had done. He also bore in mind the fact that accused did not actually get any cash, and in fact it would have been impossible for accused to have got any cash at all. The Bank had also given him a good character for the period that he had worked with them. He was going to adopt the suggestion, and to which the prosecution had agreed, and bind him over in a surety of $200 for twelve months, the bond to be signed by accused's father.

His Worship added: "I am aware of the risk I am taking in doing this, and I trust you will take the lesson to heart and behave yourself in the future."

NEW U.S. TREASURER.

Washington, Yesterday.

Mr. Ogden Mills, Under-Secretary to the Treasury, has been appointed to succeed Mr. A. Mellon as Treasurer.—Reuter's American Service.

Sydall, Capt. and Mrs. Mitchell and Officers of the Royal Engineers and Naval Officers.

The prizes were given away by Mrs. Skinner, the winners being: Ladies' Fancy Dress, Mrs. Hayden, Spanish Lady.

Men's Fancy Dress, Mr. G. E. Clarke, Chinese.

Spot Waltz, Lt. Col. Marsden and Miss Boyd.

Responsible for the arrangement were the Entertainment Committee, under the able direction of Q.M.S. Daniels, who is to be congratulated, together with his hard working Committee, on the excellent result. Staff Sergeant Berwer acted as M.C.

demand made by the Japanese Consul-General was right and adequate. On January 25, the Shanghai Municipal Council held a Conference of foreign members, excepting the Japanese and Chinese, and on its own initiative, decided unanimously to close down the Chinese Daily News and the Headquarters of Anti-Japanese Association, and on the 26th, they took the steps to close the Daily News. As to the Anti-Japanese Association, they showed their willingness to support the Japanese in the event of their raiding the Headquarters of the Association.

2. The Japanese authorities informed the Shanghai Municipal Council of their necessary measures in connection with the closing of the Anti-Japanese Association, a previous arrangement on this point and the Japanese Navy made matter with the Shanghai Municipal Council Police. On the 27th, the Japanese Consul-General notified the Consul-General of Great Britain, United States of America and France respectively of this decision.

3. On January 27, the commanding officers of each country held a conference and agreed upon

Most Expensive Night's Entertainment.

A HUMAN MAGISTRATE.

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, Yesterday.

What Counsel called the "a most expensive evening's entertainment" a man could possibly have undertaken cost a clerk, who climbed up and damaged Eros Statue in Piccadilly on New Year's Eve 100 guineas when summonses against him concluded to-day.

Though the damage amounted to over £152 the London County Council were willing to accept 100 guineas.

"No elderly person with many recollections of his own youth would be too severe on youth's follies," declared the 84 year old magistrate.

LOST CONTROL.

In a report to the Police, Choi Siu-fai, bus driver, stated that, yesterday evening, he was driving a motor bus, from the Star Ferry to Laichikok, (No. 2 route) in Nathan Road, and on nearing the Police Training School premises, he lost control of the vehicle, and struck a stone in the middle of the road. The bus then collided with a heap of scaffolding, damaging the side of the vehicle.

Warder Tisser, of the Laichikok Prison, who was a passenger in the bus, received cuts to his face through broken glass. He was sent to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

CLUTCHING HAND.

That it was not the amount of money that counted, but more the offence against the woman, was the remark passed by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning in sentencing Pun Siu-lu to six months' hard labour for the theft of a hand bag from Chan Sau, a married woman living at Stanley Street. His Worship added that the offence was very serious.

According to Inspector Brennan, the woman was making purchases at the Chinese New Year Bazaar in Jervois Street when accused snatched her hand bag. Li Wan-chai, a pilot of the Standard Oil Company of New York, who witnessed the incident, gave chase and arrested the man.

plan of operation for the protection of the International Settlement, the plan being as follows:—

- a. French Forces: The area of the French Settlement.
- b. British Forces: The area between Kiao-Chow Road and Jessfield.
- c. American Forces: The area between Mohawk Road and Kiao-Chow Road.
- d. The Voluntary Corps: The area between the Bund and Race Course.
- e. Japanese Force: The area at the north of the Sochow creek extending between North Kiangsi Road and Yangtze-poo.
- f. On the 28th at 3.15 o'clock p.m. Mr. Wu Tieh-chen, the Mayor of Greater Shanghai, accepted the Japanese demands to the satisfaction of the Japanese Consul-General and Admiral Shiozawa of Japanese Navy.
- g. The Japanese might be criticised for their exchanging fire with the Chinese after accepting the Mayor's reply. But these are two different things. It appears that on account of this misunderstanding, the public is inclined to

EFFORT TO RESTORE TRADE BALANCE

10 PER CENT. ON IMPORTS

WHEAT AND TEA ON THE FREE LIST.

Rugby, Yesterday.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, made known to a crowded House of Commons to-day the Government's policy for dealing with the adverse trade balance by a comprehensive system of tariffs.

The basis of the proposals is a general ad valorem duty of ten per cent. on all imports, except for the items mentioned on the free list, which include grain and wheat and also tea pending the Budget.

The tobacco, sugar, the McKenna and safe-guarding duties, as well as abnormal duties and horticultural duties, will continue.

An independent salaried Advisory Committee, with not less than two or more than five members, will devote their full time to considering what additional duties should be imposed and to studying the general interest of trade and industry.

In the case of the Dominions neither the general nor the additional duties will be operative before the Ottawa Conference has been held.

All the produce of all the Colonies, Protectorates, and Mandated Territories will be completely exempted from either the general or additional duties.

Mr. Chamberlain, in surveying the situation, recalled that when the National Government was formed it was with a mandate to apply an unprejudiced mind, free from all fetters, to the restoration of confidence in our financial stability and to frame plans for ensuring a favourable balance of trade.

He declared that he did not believe that anywhere else in the world could there have been such self-sacrificing and devoted patriotism as was being shown by the British nation during the last few months. He instanced the fact that Income-tax payable on January 1 had been received to the amount of £105,000,000 against £80,000,000 last year. He believed that the same spirit would continue—that any loss they might have to meet in other directions would be made good and that their financial affairs would come out on the right side at the end of the year.

The Pound.

Mr. Chamberlain mentioned that the internal purchasing power of the pound was still twenty shillings, and that since Great Britain went off the gold standard the cost of living had risen only two points and was actually six points below that of a year ago. The steadiness of sterling was the best possible indication of the confidence felt abroad in Great Britain's future. This, doubtless, had been fortified by the Bank of England's recent repayments of large foreign credits without drawing further upon its gold reserves. It seems to be that conditions were so shaping themselves that other countries, which had been forced for one reason or another to forsake the gold standard, were more and more turning towards sterling as the best measure of value of currency during the period of suspension from the normal standard.

Look Overseas.

After referring to the definite but rather partial and uncertain improvement in trade, the Chancellor declared that the corner had not yet been turned. A great exporting country like Britain was forced to look overseas for a great part of its trade, and the catastrophe fall in the gold prices of commodities, which showed no signs of having reached bottom has brought world trade to a deplorable condition.

He referred to the enormous growth of trade restrictions all over the world, which had imposed tariff barriers on British trade. Many of Britain's problems were international in character and could only be dealt with by the willing co-operation of other nations. Other problems were within her own control.

Exports Decrease.

During the last two years while imports had remained practically stationary, exports had decreased by nearly 38 per cent. Such figures established the necessity for action. They desired to correct the trade balance by diminishing imports and stimulating exports and fortifying their finances with fresh revenue raised by methods which put no undue burden upon any section of the community.

They proposed by a system of "moderate protection," scientifically adjusted to industry and agriculture, to transfer to Great Britain's own factories and fields work which was now done elsewhere. They desired a flexible and elastic plan which could be readily varied and adopted to suit changing conditions. By its judicious use they hoped to make more efficient their methods of production distribution, and they needed also to use it for negotiations with foreign countries which hitherto had paid little attention to their suggestions.

It was prudent to be armed with an instrument at least as effective as those which might be used to discriminate against British trade in other countries.

They wished to use the opportunity of offering the Empire something in return for the advantages which they give and which in the near future they may give in return. They believed that they had a policy which would

"THE SAP FROM SYRACUSE."

There are few idle moments in the professional life of peppy Ginger Rogers, who completed her featured role in "Queen High" for Paramount just on time to line up with Jack Oakie, in that star's latest laugh riot, "The Sap from Syracuse."

"The Sap from Syracuse," which having its final showings to-day at the Central Theatre, is Ginger's third consecutive role for Paramount since she signed her first contract about four months ago. Her first part, that of the cuddlesome Puff in "Young Man of Manhattan," brought a large measure of screen success.

"The Sap from Syracuse" is the Broadway staged comedy sensation of last season brought to the screen. Many of the original stage players are with Oakie and Ginger in the cast.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

An accurate replica of Oxford University was constructed on the Christie lot during the filming of "Charley's Aunt," the talking picture version of Brandon Thomas's play. The film is a farce based on the ever interesting topic of mistaken identity and is coming to the Central Theatre to-morrow.

The set, which was one of the most pretentious ever built by the company, covered a full city block and represent exactly one of the quadrangles at the famous English University with its characteristic architecture, chapels and gardens. Huge gray, ivy covered walls, spaced by arches and windows are there too. The sets were built from a set of photographs of historic Oxford and are correct to the minutest detail.

Charlie Ruggles, that inimitable comedian, plays the title role. He is supported by June Collyer, Flora Sheffield, Doris Lloyd, Halliwell Hobbes, Rodney McLennan, Hugh Williams, and Flora Le Breton.

"THE VIRTUOUS SIN."

Many are the unproduced plays which to-day lie at the bottom of trunks, forgotten and beyond all hope of ever being glimpsed across the footlights.

Few are the occasions where such pieces of work are dug out after a number of years in their literary "cemetery," to become sensational successes. The case of Lajos Zilahy's play, "The General," which has been made into a Paramount talking feature under the title of "The Virtuous Sin," and which is now showing at the King's Theatre, is an example of one of those rare resurrections.

Last season, ten years after it was first written, the author pulled the play from its dusty storage place, rewrote parts of it, and was delighted in hearing it acclaimed a master-piece of modern play-writing, after its presentation in Budapest.

So successful was the play that Paramount acquired the talking picture rights to the drama and it is offered as "The Virtuous Sin," with Kay Francis, Walter Huston and Kenneth MacKenna in the leading roles.

"SIDEWALKS OF NEW YORK."

"Discoveries" in child talent were made in an interesting manner in Buster Keaton's latest talkie, and as a result several small boys distinguished themselves in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "Sidewalks of New York," which will come to the Queen's Theatre to-day.

In the new production, a hilarious romance of city life, Buster plays a millionaire's son who tries to reform the small boys of the tenement districts. Nearly two hundred youngsters were collected for this "mob."

Among the outstanding juvenile performers were Jimmy Kane, twelve years old; Jerry Schatz, age five, and new to pictures, and Coy Watson, noted for several other screen roles. Jack McHugh, Bobby Holmes are others in the group.

Newman, Jack Ackerman and Leon One of the outstanding characters was found to be Allan Chan, a Japanese boy, who plays Boloney and wrestles with Keaton in the picture.

Anita Page is seen as the heroine and Cliff Edwards, Frank Rowan, Norman Phillips, jun., Frank La Rue, Oscar Apfel, Syd Saylor and Clark Marshall are in the cast.

"MERELY MARY ANN."

"Once Cape Codder, always one." That's an old Massachusetts saying and it appears to be true! At least, the Cape's only representative in Screenland, Charles Farrell, who is co-starred with Janet Gaynor in the Fox romance, "Merely Mary Ann," coming to-morrow to the King's Theatre, has certainly done his best to preserve the memory of his birthplace among the hills of California. When Farrell decided to build a home on the shore of a tiny lake, just over the hill from the bustle and roar of the film colony, he wanted a Cape Cod type of house.

But the restrictions on that particular development required "Spanish" styles, and Farrell had to draw up a petition and get the signature of every resident in the district before he could begin building his cottage with its flagstone walls and dormer winddowed, high gabled roof.

Beryl Mercer and J. M. Kerrigan head the supporting cast of "Merely Mary Ann."

"DIXIANA."

"Dixiana" the musical romantic drama which is coming to the Queen's Theatre on Wednesday next, starring Bebe Daniels, Radio Pictures' star, and Everett Marshall, Metropolitan Opera baritone, has been done largely in technicolour to attain the brilliance of colour in the gorgeous Mardi Gras sequences of its period.

Set in New Orleans in 1840, and filled with the turbulent passionate life of the gay southern city, "Dixiana" makes full use in costumes and settings of the brilliance of that era.

Bebe Daniels and Everett Marshall are starred with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, mad wags of "Rio Rita" and "The Cuckoos" in comedy roles. A cast of more than 5,000 is seen, and eleven song hits written by Harry Tierney and Anne Caldwell comprise the score.

Seven hundred sheep were killed by hailstones which fell for just over an hour recently in the Vaal River district, South Africa. Some of the hailstones were the size of hen's eggs.

A small panel of English needlework of the 17th century was sold at Sotheby's recently for £300, more than 11s. per square inch.

ALWAYS A GREAT SHOW

RACING DOES NOT PAY.

Man Who Won
£40,000.

Mr. J. A. Dewar, who heads the list of winning owners on the Turf this season with the sum of nearly £40,000, talked to me, writes an Evening News correspondent, about the mysterious business of Making Money Out of Racing.

"I have been very lucky," he said, "not in the fact that the horses I own have won so much for me as in the fact that I owned them when they won."

"If my uncle (the late Lord Dewar) were only alive to-day, he would be reaping the reward of his years of hard work in building up his stable."

"To win £40,000 is a great help in a big stable, but it does not mean a profit by any means. You have to take the expenses over a number of years — for, naturally, that amount of money is not won every year."

"I am going to stay in the game as long as the Chancellor of the Exchequer will let me. But it all depends on him. You cannot feed race horses on non-dividend-paying scrip. It cannot be done."

"Racing Does Not Pay."

"The trouble is—and always will be—with racehorses that the horses which win races pay sometimes handsomely for their keep and their expenses. But I think the average owner will tell you that for every ten horses that he feeds only two win races."

"I don't think any man makes racing pay him, and to-day you must win races to be able to keep going."

"If only a stable was full of good horses all would be well, but no stable ever could be. If the ordinary man in the street knew the money which is spent in forfeits he would be surprised."

"And, therefore, when you do win a race you are winning a fair percentage of your own money back again."

"But you must take the rough with the smooth. If there were no forfeits there would be no prizes. Mr. Dewar said he did not think they could expect any help from the Tote during his lifetime. He pointed out that it was costly to install the Tote on a course where there might be only four days' racing in the year, so the percentage of people using the Tote had to be very high before it could start paying something towards breeding."

Strain on Jockeys.

"In some other countries," he pointed out, "racing is concentrated in one, or two centres. Here it is all over the country. You go from York to Derby, then to Brighton, and off to some place the other side of the country."

"It is wonderful how the jockeys stand the strain. I have seen them running for the train while putting on their overcoats immediately after a race. Yet you seldom hear of them being ill."

I got Mr. Dewar to talk about horses. "Well," he said, "you will be sorry. I am sure, to hear that old Abbot's Trace is pretty well finished. Laminitis and other troubles have doubled him up. He can't get up now."

"As to next year—honestly, there has been little chance of trying anything out. But there's a half-brother to Cameronian—Lochiel, we have called him—who should do pretty well. He's a nice horse."

Mr. Dewar smiled and turned to his letters. "Well, we can only hope for good luck again next year."

LEICESTER BEAT PORTSMOUTH.

Narrow Victory at

London, Yesterday.
Leicester City, on their own ground, defeated Portsmouth by the odd goal in three in yesterday's First Division match.—Reuter.

If a boy golfer does happen to play a bad stroke it means nothing to him. He dismisses it from his mind and goes on as before. But as youth expands to manhood, he can't help trying to cut out the occasional wild shot by taking conscious control of his muscles, and what was before a matter of instinct begins to be attainable only by hard mental effort. Very few have got the grit to carry them over that stage, which is why you see so many promising youngsters failing to get any better.—Archie Compston.

FILMING A FLY'S WINGS IN FLIGHT.

A Super "Slow-Motion" Achievement.

Science has caught up with the speed of a fly.
This was demonstrated when Professor Jean Magnah took a film of the movements of a fly's wings in full flight, beating at a rate of 200 times a second.

As shown on the film, the fly's wings appeared to be moving no faster than the legs of a man walking along a street.

The camera with which this picture was taken works at a rate of 3,000 "shots" a second, as compared with an ordinary cinema the speed of which is from 16 to 24 pictures a second. The experiment was carried out in the laboratories of the College de France.

China's Future.

Sincerity alone impels us to follow precedent of 87 years in wishing for China and the Chinese, in this Colony and in China itself, the time-honoured greeting: "A Happy New Year." The outlook at the moment, it is true, is not exactly promising, owing to the unfortunate clash with Japan; but difficulties arise only to be overcome eventually. Five or ten years hence the present embargo will be but a memory. The rights and the wrongs will repose in the archives of the respective nations; and a new China may have arisen able and qualified to maintain her ancient traditions.

Dr. Sherwood Eddy, who has spent more than 30 years in the Orient, has written a book entitled "The Challenge of the East." From a lecture he recently gave in Hankow copious extracts have been published by the Canton Gazette. Particularly appropriate on the eve of the Chinese New Year is a passage in which he declares:—

"I believe in the future of China. It will be greater than China's glorious past. It will some day be an honest China, but it will be a United China, but we have got to begin to go ahead—very, very dark. Japan has hardly begun: she is going to extend her conquests. The Communists have hardly begun; they are going to extend their activities. It will be a dark time, for China, a very humiliating time. But I take it that we all love China, so let us work together, let us stand together to save China. Let us build up integrity of character. Let us build up a new co-operation and unity. Let us widen these areas of good Government, believing that in the end in this old world we are going to have liberty and justice. I believe in the future of China, but there is no time to be lost. Let us stand together to build new China in this day of the most serious crisis that the country has ever faced in all her long history."

These are significant utterances on the eve of a New Year for China—a year that may witness either a great step forward or a movement in the opposite direction. China will not lack good counsel and sage advice. In all that she does for the uplifting of herself and of her people, she will ever find Great Britain and Britons overseas as staunch friends as in the past. Even Japan, when the present mist has evaporated, will be found ready to work shoulder to shoulder with China for the betterment of the Orient as a whole. There is not one gesture that foreign Powers will withhold if that of itself can be deemed helpful to China. The lane of tribulation and trial may be a long and dreary one, but the turning must be reached one day, one year; and then Peace in the Orient will be an established fact and Chinese New Year Days shall be brighter and happier than that which dawns after the last stroke of midnight tonight.

News in Brief.

For the first time this year 0.60 inch of rain was recorded in Kowloon yesterday.

The lowest open air temperature yesterday up to 4 p.m. was 61 degrees. The humidity was 83 at 10 a.m. and 88 at 4 p.m.

Three Chinese constables and two other men charged with making illegal exactions from hawkers were again at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon when the hearing was continued and adjourned.

Further reductions in the prices of cigarettes are advertised by Messrs. John D. Hutchison & Co. as agents for Godfrey Phillips, Ltd., London, and associated companies. A list of the particular brands, with the new prices, will be found elsewhere in this issue.

The annual Chinese fair has been moved to Wanchai for the first time this year. Stalls have been prepared, numbering about 800, to cope with the demand for florists, toy dealers, and all Chinese goods, but the response has been poor. The Sincere Co. are offering their fifth and sixth floors to florists who specially cater for prominent families. As a result of this many have to walk up the stairs owing to the congestion on both lifts.

The body of a Chinese man was found hanging from a tree in King's Park yesterday. He has been identified as Wai Nam-pun, aged 28 years, of 29 Nanking Street.

Mr. C. M. Freshaw, of 520 The Peak, has reported to the Police that on Wednesday night some person or persons entered his house by severing two panes of glass, and stole property to the value of $225.50.

Personal Pars.

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Henry Frederick Westlake, living at Volunteer Headquarters, and Elizabeth Lillias McCance, of Woodbourne, Dunmurry, Co. Antrim, Northern Ireland, en route to Hong Kong on the s.s. Rajputana.

One of the oldest members of the Indian community, Mrs. A. F. el Arculli, passed away yesterday afternoon, at her home, 58 Kennedy Road, at the age of 70 years, after a protracted illness. She was the widow of Mr. A. F. el Arculli. She leaves five sons, Mr. A. el Arculli, solicitor, Dr. Hassan el Arculli, Messrs. A. K. E. and O. el Arculli, and two daughters. One of the latter is married.

DIARY OF HIS DYING HOURS.

Student Watches His Disease Develop.

The science of medicine contains no more heroic tale than the life and death of Alfred Seymour Reinhart, of the Harvard Medical School, who, fully aware that he must soon die, devoted his time to studying his own disease for the benefit of mankind.

Despite excruciating pain during his last days, Reinhart refused drugs lest he should lose the opportunity of gaining knowledge of his case.

Although he died, aged 24, on October 26, it is only now that his story has been published. Reinhart was only a boy when rheumatism injured one of his heart valves. At Harvard he became aware that bits of the scar on his injured heart were breaking away and lodging in his blood-vessels.

The Symptoms.

His diagnosis correct, Reinhart knew he must expect the streptococcus germ to permeate his blood system and end his life by dissolving the red blood corpuscles. The signs of this would be red blotches on his skin.

Last July, while seated at dinner, Reinhart recognised these symptoms. He determined to use every moment of the few months of life left to him. He entered Boston City Hospital and proceeded to study each new pain as he traced the ravages of the germ through his body.

He once described the agony he endured as equal to that suffered by six women in childbirth. He was writing notes four days before his death, and he directed that a post-mortem examination be made.

SEEING BRITAIN'S TUBE TRAINS.

Russians Gather Ideas On The Underground.

A special commission of the Moscow Soviet has been to London to study municipal services and particularly the organisation of London's transport.

Moscow is planning to build an underground railway, and London's vast tube network was of special interest to the Commission. They visited the Acton Underground overhaul works, and Lot's road Power Station.

The Commission was led by the vice-chairman of the Moscow Soviet, B. A. Sternberg, and included the general director of Moscow's tramways, A. E. Rende-Rote, and the director of the central repair shops in Moscow, F. G. Sokoloff.

They previously visited Germany, Austria, and other Continental countries. Most of London's Underground trains are painted red, but it is too much to expect Moscow to paint theirs red, white and blue and return the compliment.

ASCENT OF MT. KINABALU IN SEARCH OF PLANTS

ONE OF THE WORLD'S RICHEST BOTANICAL TREASURE HOUSES.

Mr. R. E. Holtum, Director of the Botanical Gardens, Singapore, gives the following brief account of his ascent of Mt. Kinabalu, British North Borneo, in November of last year.

Notwithstanding many warnings, I ventured to the summit of Mount Kinabalu in November. The spirits of the mountain were kind and provided fine weather on all the important days, reserving most of the rain for times when camp was already pitched. The only exception was the first day's march from Tenompok, on which we were drenched before arriving at Lumu Lumu.

Before making the ascent, I spent a very enjoyable week in the company of Chaplain and Mrs. Clemens, at Dallas. I then moved on to Mr. Clemens' new house at Tenompok, in which he and his wife are planning to spend a year or more while making their botanical collections on Kinabalu.

A Dangerous Path.

Mr. Clemens accompanied me from Tenompok to the summit. He then returned to Dallas, leaving me to descend more leisurely by way of Kamborangoh and Lobong to Kiau. As I came down the steep path from Kamborangoh to Lobong, I was thankful that we had not ascended that way, and my admiration went forth to all those brave adventurers who were not deterred by that desperate ascent. The old Lobong cave was reported to be closed by a recent landslide, and we camped just below the lower rock, experiencing there the heaviest rain of our journey.

The River Kadamai between Lobong and the Menendok gorge is a magnificent spectacle. The forest covered slopes rise steeply on either side and the moss covered trees and rocks on its banks are laden with ferns and orchids. Botanically I found this stretch of the river exceedingly interesting, and we were favoured with a fine day and fairly low water. The Menendok gorge is the present limit of cultivation. Below it we came out upon a ladang of young rice, beside which we pitched our camp. After returning to Kiau I ascended the Maral Paral ridge, and saw the celebrated Nepenthes rajah, the giant pitcher plant.

Marvellous Mosses.

My guide informed me that a very large landslide in the Ulu of the Dahomang river, in August, caused such a quantity of earth to be carried down the river that all the fish were killed. When we came to the Dahomang river, it presented an extraordinary contrast to the Kadamai. The boulders beside its bed, instead of being smooth and water worn or covered with mosses and ferns, were all newly scoured and roughened, and not a particle of moss was left on them. A step into the forest however brought one into contact with garlands of mosses and ferns, hanging from the lower branches of the trees. Finally I crossed the valley to Dallas to say good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. Clemens, and to pick up specimens left there.

I returned to Kota Belud by the usual route, having had a most memorable month botanically and from many other points of view. At Kota Belud I was greeted by the hospitality of the District Officer, who kindly arranged the concluding section of my travels, to which I proceed, fortified by a pleasant and restful week-end spent at his bungalow.

Another View.

Another account comes from Mr. Joseph Clemens.

The night before starting up, we spent at the newly almost completed "Jungle Lodge" (The name proposed for the new lodge). That was November 12. On the thirteenth we reached Lumu Lumu, and spread our canvas under a hard, steady rain for the afternoon and night. On the 13th we reached Pakia, again in a hard shower. On the 14th we ascended the great mountain, a goodly company without accident, and returned to Pakia in the afternoon, again under a hard rain, although the members of our company who did not linger to collect extra plants escaped the rains, the last two days, and reached the shelter of the cave dry shod.

Evil Spirits Mollified.

Of course the going aloft was accompanied by the usual Dusun ceremonies by the Priest to propitiate the supposedly evil spirits of the mountain to make it safe for the visitors. He was careful to hasten ahead of us lest we step over the danger line at which he must scatter rice, place eggs, or leave chickens. At the sacrificial rock, eggs and other food were left and prayers offered while we made pictures of the proceedings; and at the sacrificial pool were left various offerings, the most pitiable of which were two chickens tied by the legs, with their heads drooping down as if they were freezing to death. At this place, we tried pictures of the sacrifices, the priest with his bunch of charms, or amulets, and some of the scenery, especially Lowe's Gully, up which we had hoped to be able to ascend the mountain from behind; but were convinced of the impossibility. We do hope later to work our way up the rivers to study the flora behind and on the back part of the mighty mountain. In about a month we expect again to ascend the mount to make a study of the flora of St. John's peak. At which time Mrs. Clemens expects to accompany us to collect what our less trained eyes overlook.

60 Orchids.

Perhaps Mr. Holtum has reported the finding of at least 250 ferns of different species. I specialized on orchids and brought samples of about 60 not found lower down. They will be sent to the British Museum, in a few days, as I could not prepare them in time to go with a large shipment to them on November 25.

I think Director Holtum is of my opinion that no place in the world is so prolific in plant species as this great mountain and its ridges. We are now trying to finish the study of the plants on the higher and lower parts of the Dallas-Tenompok mountain range, after which we shall make Jungle Lodge our base of operations, to study the higher part of the mountain.

To-day's Thought.

You can't get much of an outlook if you keep looking down.

Ten Years Ago.

[From the "China Mail" of February 5, 1922.]

To-day's dollar is worth 2/6%.

A motor car belonging to the Canton Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Company collided with the Duke of Connaught's statue opposite the Blake Pier yesterday afternoon and was severely damaged. The driver had his face cut and another man with him was so badly hurt as to necessitate his removal to hospital.

TALKIE TALKS

by
DianeRONALD COLMAN'S SECRET
VISIT HERE

"DIXIANA"—A GREAT HIT.

"Doctor's Wives" with Warner Baxter.
Due at King's.

I had been told from Singapore to respect the fact that Ronald Colman wished no one to know he was coming to Hong Kong; he had crept in there absolutely unnoticed, and crept out again. I did not even let the Queen's Theatre nor the United Artists office staff know of the expected arrival, (and they say a woman can't keep a secret). Consequently, I was the lone individual on the wharf on Tuesday at about twelve-fifteen, to welcome him as the D'Artagnan arrived. I do not claim Ronny Colman as a friend, merely wished to renew a very short acquaintance made at the wedding of Miss Bessie Love some months ago. He was kind enough to say he remembered the meeting. We know him so well on the screen, that it does not seem strange to speak to him, and he is one of the most charming and courteous of men. His voice is just as recorded, and his manner natural, breezy, and full of good cheer. We only had about ten minutes chat, and he left for Hong Kong, a motor trip to the Peak and Repulse Bay, and asked me to return to the ship at five-thirty. Then the reporter had heard of his arrival, and was busy with book and pencil. I did not interview him in any capacity except as a keen "Ronald Colman fan," and found him most gracious. Lots of little things we talked about in that final quarter of an hour before his fellow-passengers claimed him. He is travelling with one pal, an American, and is having a grand holiday. He must be back to work at the end of the month. He is forty-one on the 9th, and will spend it with his Uncle in Shanghai. He thanked me for keeping his visit a secret as it meant absolute freedom, and he craves for that. I asked him did he think he had been recognized at the Hotels, and he said: "Oh! I hope not." No detail of the docking escaped him, and he is loving every moment of the trip to the Orient. He thinks Hong Kong a lovely spot, and wants to come again some day. I could go into raptures about this British film idol, but he hates flattery. This man strikes you as being marvelously cheerful, but he has known so many disappointments, had to fight his way through many problems, (not being the type who would leave things to chance), that one feels behind his mental make-up he looks on life and its vicissitudes with grim eyes. Born in Richmond, Surrey, he started to earn his living as a shipping clerk, joined up for the Great War in 1914, and was invalided out two years later. He tried again for a job, but could not fancy an office stool. Having made a hobby of amateur theatricals, he tried that precarious mode of a livelihood. He drifted to New York and was "up against it" many times. The fact that he looked like an Italian gave him a good chance with Ruth Chatterton, and again for the same reason was chosen to play opposite Lillian Gish in "The White Sister".

Samuel Goldwyn liked his work, and "put him on his feet." He has managed him, exploited him, and given him world-fame for nearly eight years.

Ronald Colman hopes to return to the stage and ultimately to retire, to live in between Italy and California, and travel. Being now a very rich man, he can grant every wish. We shall shortly see his two latest films, the last one, "Arrowsmith," being a picture after his own heart, he told me. I just want to say that he is all we would judge him to be from what we read, and how we "read" his character on the screen, and believe me, it makes a charming, fascinating whole.

I hear that Bebe Daniels has another hit in "Dixiana." She talks in a Southern accent, something new for Bebe. In this story she sings and dances in a local Hippodrome, with Wheeler and Woolsey as her partners. Her young lover is Everett Marshall (from the Chicago Opera House), who does not sing enough to please me. The hefty Johnny Howland, and Joseph Cawthorne, with Ralph Harold as villain, are a few among a large cast. There is a bit of a plot and kidnapping. Beautiful costumes of the period of 1840, some technicolour, and Bebe looking beautiful—a joy to ear and eye. Can you ask more in reason? (Queen's).

Joe Cook, a favourite stage comedian, comes to the screen in "Rain or Shine," and makes one glad of it. He is a pleasant fellow with a brand new sort of humour, and considerable originality. It is a circus story, and not any worse nor any better than the usual stories of life under the big tent. However, the story does not matter much. Cook hands you all the laughs. Joan Peers, Louise Fazenda, and Buster Collier, fill the bill quite capably, but it is Joe Cook whom you can't forget. (Central).

Miss a Buster Keaton film at your peril! See "Sidewalks of New York" when Buster goes down to the tenements to show his manager how to handle rough youngsters. The young kid Norman Phillips is good, and the blonde Anita Page and amusing Cliff Edwards help the amusement along. Strongly advised. (Queen's).

This Elissa Landi has everything—grace, beauty and glamour. She is coming again to the King's. I regret to say the story is not worthy of her, but we shall have Lewis Stone and Paul Cavanagh, and Miss Landi is not to be missed in "Always Good-bye."

"Gang Buster" is a fast mixture of comedy and melodrama. This is exactly the picture for Jack Oakie; I wish he had a few more, as good. It is a travesty on the underworld, but highly amusing, with plenty of gags and constant movement. William (Stage) Boyd plays the heavy, as he usually does. Jean Arthur makes headway in her work as the heroine, but the girl who steals the feminine honours is Wynne Gibson. She is not an obvious beauty, but an appeal to the eye and as the discarded sweetheart she is most appealing. Jack Oakie is ideally cast. Worth seeing. (King's).

Barbara Stanwyck in "The Locked Door," Marion Davies in one of the best films she has ever done, "Bachelor Father" with C. Aubrey Smith and Ralph Forbes, and two new films entirely new to the Colony: Blanche Sweet and Tom Moore in "The Woman Racket," and Winifred Westover in Fannie Hurst's sordid novel "Lummock," are all being shown shortly at the Star Theatre.

Charles Ruggles is tired of playing "drunk" roles, and has succeeded in getting away from type to give us of his best as the famous "Aunt from Brazil, where the nuts come from." It is hardly necessary to tell you the name of the film "Charley's Aunt." June Collyer and Doris Lloyd hover in the background, but Charles takes the show upon his shoulders, and some people say he gives a better performance than Syd Chaplin did in the silent version. It is an amusing farce for the Chinese New Year attraction. (Central).

In "The Virtuous Sin," sex and love all get tangled in a story of Russian intrigue. It is quite colourful and exciting, and Kay Francis really steals the show, although Walter Huston gives a fine performance as the General. Kenneth McKenna, who has now given up acting for directing, married his leading lady after this picture was finished. The film begins as a drama, then almost veers to burlesque, and finishes as a romance. The wife sacrifices honour to a villain, in order to spare her husband's life, but the villain turns hero. (King's).

In "Doctor's Wives" you are asked to believe that every female patient is out to annex the affections of the handsome doctor, (when he happens to be Warner Baxter, I can't blame the women). Joan Bennett has grounds for her suspicions. Helene Millard does her vamp act, and I liked Victor Varconi. Warner Baxter is not too convincing, but he looks handsome, and why quibble over trifles? He can't always be the "Cisco Kid." (King's).

Do you like Jack Oakie? I do. In "The Sap from Syracuse," he is mistaken when travelling on an ocean liner for a famous mining engineer. Ginger Rogers is an heiress travelling on the same ship. There are also two crooks, and Mr. Oakie foils their little game, and marries the lady. Oh no! not for her money! Quite entertaining comedy. (Central).

"Merely Mary Ann" is based on Israel Zangwill's drama of a decade ago, but it gives us back the Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. I have given up trying to fathom why these two are universally loved, why their films pack the theatres, but the fact remains that they appeal to the general public. I am the first to hand bouquets to the two artists who deserve of the best, and I shall never forget "Seventh Heaven." The speaking voices of these two took away all Fox's right to claim "Merely Mary Ann" to be a knock-out, so it is to be the Chinese New Year attraction in a London boarding house, our at the King's.

pathetic little Janet is the slave who receives only unkindness and Charles is a struggling musician who ignores the heroine till she inherits a cool million, then discovers how much he really loves her, and, being a perfect gentleman, naturally refrains from telling her. It is a good story, and there is a delightful song number.

Janet and Charles are married, but not to each other, which was "sickening" for their myriads of admirers who wanted them to marry. I know for a fact that they were in love, desperately, during the screening of "Seventh Heaven." Janet still calls Charles "Her Chico," but Charles had a girl friend, Virginia Valli, and rumour has it in Hollywood, that he refused to give up this friend and Janet in a fit of pique ran away to the San Francisco and married Lydell Peck, a young lawyer, now attached to the Fox Studio staff. After the filming of "High Society Blues," Janet ran away to Honolulu, and lost many months' salary, but refused to act in this type of picture. The two young screen sweethearts returned to double harness in "The Man who came to Back," and for the sake of high box-office receipts will continue as partners, on the screen, anyhow. Fox rightly claim "Merely Mary Ann" to be a knock-out, so it is to be the Chinese New Year attraction in a London boarding house, our at the King's.

bring new hope and new heart to Great Britain and give rise to a new spirit of energy and co-operation throughout the Empire.

Wheat Quota System.
Amplifying the proposals given above the Chancellor said that regarding the placing of wheat on the free list, the Government's intention was to deal with it by the quota system. There was also a list which included bacon and fresh fish of British taking, and in the free list would also be found raw materials of two great textile industries—raw cotton and raw wool. Tea was put into the free list because it was considered more convenient to deal with it in conjunction with other beverages such as coffee and cocoa in the ordinary course of the Budget.

On the superstructure of the advalorem duties there would be additional duties on articles non-essential to the individual or the nation such as luxuries or goods which could be produced in sufficient quantities at home. These would be dealt with by Treasury orders after consultation with the Departments concerned. It would be the function of the Advisory Committee to consider the circumstances of such articles in the light of the general interests of trade and community.

Regarding the Ottawa Imperial Conference the Government intended to approach it with a full determination to promote arrangements leading to a great increase of inter-imperial trade.

Regarding foreign trade, powers would be given for a duty which might amount to 100 per cent. in addition to the existing duties upon goods coming from countries with discriminatory tariffs against Brittain. But another provision was designed to facilitate the lowering of the tariff barriers in foreign countries by offering to reduce our own tariffs in return for an advantage of that kind. Much importance was attached to this as a bargaining factor, but no arrangements of this kind with any foreign country would be concluded until after the Ottawa Imperial Conference.—
British Wireless Service.

Colonies Exempt.

London, Yesterday.
In the House of Commons, Mr.
Neville Chamberlain announced that the Government had decided to introduce a system of "moderate Protection" scientifically adjusted to the needs of industry and agriculture in order to remedy the adverse trade balance from March 1.

A basic duty of ten per cent.
will be imposed on all imports except wheat, meat, fish, raw cotton, wool, tea, and other goods already subject to duty. The superstructure of the additional duties will be raised on a ten per cent. basis. These duties will be imposed by order of the Treasury after recommendation by an independent advisory Committee.

Neither the basic nor the additional duties will be operative on goods from India and the Dominions before the Ottawa conference.

SERIOUS CHARGES.

Serious charges alleging conspiracy with others to steal $7,000 and theft of $6,825 from Mr. Tsang Fun-hing, a retired merchant from America, were preferred against Chan Cheung-nam, aged 36 years, described as a shroff, before Mr.
Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

Det. Sergeant D. C. W. Fitches was for the prosecution, whilst Mr. A. E. Hall appeared for the defence, and applied for bail.
Sergeant Fitches said he was instructed by his Superintendent to oppose bail. There were two men, alleged to have been connected with the affair, still at large, and there was the possibility of further charges being brought against the accused who was remanded formally for a week.

G.P.O. AND THE HOLIDAYS.

Post Office and Branch Post Offices will be entirely closed, no collection from the pillar boxes and no delivery by postmen, but ordinary correspondence may be obtained at the boxes and one delivery of ordinary correspondence as on

JUNK FOUNDERS.

Wong Kam-thoi, steersman of a trading junk, has notified the Police that on Wednesday morning, whilst sailing the junk loaded with sand, valued $50, from Chu Lung Kok to Hong Kong, owing to heavy seas she foundered when about 300 miles off Sheung Ma Tau.

The entire crew were saved by the steam launch Cheung On.
The loss is estimated at $500.

PREMIER'S OPERATION.

Rugby, Yesterday.
A bulletin issued to-night states:
"In spite of the tiring effect of strict immobility necessitated by the operation the Prime Minister's conditions is satisfactory. The healing of his eye is proceeding normally.—British Wireless Service.

Protectorates, and mandated territories will be exempted.
The Government attached the utmost importance to the Ottawa conference and intended to secure a great increase in inter-imperial trade.
An additional duty not exceeding 100 per cent will be imposed on goods of discrimination against British goods.—Reuter.

BOMBARDMENT OF CHAPEL.

blame the Japanese. In this respect, the following points must be considered carefully.

7. On the 28th at 8.15 p.m., the Chinese Authorities accepted the Japanese demands. On the other hand, a great number of Chinese congregated around the Municipal Office creating a menacing atmosphere and rumours were risi everywhere. Especially, the state of uneasiness increased by the withdrawal of the whole Chinese Police Force, which was stationed in the district of Chapel.
Consequently, "The State of Emergency" was declared by the Shanghai Municipal Council at 4 p.m. on the same day.

8. Now the Japanese Marines were to take up their position in the district assigned to them according to the plan of defence of the 27th North Szechuen Road, which is within the area assigned to the Japanese Force, is a Settlement Road under the control of the Municipal Council and it extends far to the outside of the Settlement.
When the Japanese Marines were proceeding along this road to take their post at about 11.45 p.m., the Chinese Regular Troops opened fire against them from both sides of the road. The Japanese were consequently forced to retallate.

At about the same time, some Chinese snipers appeared in North Szechuen Road and attacked the Japanese Marines stationed at the Japanese Primary School, The Marines, thereupon, fought back.

9. The above is the true state of affairs.

In view of these facts, I hope that you will be able to see the whole situation in its true colour, and as to the more recent news, I regret to say that there are many which are misinformed or unfounded.

for instance:—

- The Japanese warship bombarded the Wosung Forts on the 29th and their planes bombed from the air.
- 4 Japanese aeroplanes were shot down on the 29th.
- On the 29th, Japanese aeroplanes bombed the Shanghai Wireless Station.
- On the 31st Japanese gunboats bombarded Swatow.
- On the 31st, a Japanese gunboat was sunk.
- On the 31st Japanese gunboats opened fire on Chinese fort at Nanking.
- Most of Japanese residents have evacuated Canton.

It appears that these are all unconfirmed news or created stories for the purpose of propaganda and may be too absurd to believe for the people who know the truth, but are effective enough to mislead the public.

I sincerely hope that the time is not far distant when peace and order in Shanghai will be restored and the people of every country there will be able to pursue their daily business in peace and safety again.

Yours etc., T. YOSHIDA.
